America in the 1950s

This project will focus on American culture in the 1950s and how it is depicted around the world today. From American fast food to muscle cars to popular music, the Fifties in the United States of America influenced the entire globe. We can see the effects of this today in fast food chain restaurants, clothing styles and much, much more. Students will create a project in groups about one aspect of 1950s American society and how it is still seen in the world today, especially related to its influence on the modern-day Czech Republic. The entire project group will then go through Hradec Králové and find evidence of 1950s America's influence on their own city. The project will end with lunch at a restaurant that serves American food originating in the 1950s, where students will discuss the positive and negative impacts of these influences.

What is Needed from Students: Money for lunch at a restaurant, basic school supplies (pen, paper, markers), a willingness to speak English for the entire project

Maximum Number of Students: 22
